Did you know that 43% of kids age 13-17 have been cyberbullied? 53% of teens admit sending a hurtful message. Only 10% of bullying victims tell their parents. 55% of teens have an online profile on a site like Facebook or MySpace. Each site has privacy controls. Inappropriate contact happens. Both sites require kids be older than 14 to have a page – but kids lie about their ages. What gets posted is there forever, somewhere.

As parents, how can we help educate ourselves and help our children when it comes to safety on the web? Here is an opportunity! Miller PTA proudly presents a parent education seminar from Common Sense Media, an organization that is dedicated to improving the media and entertainment lives of kids and families:

“Email, Websites, Social Networking, Texting...
Digital Kids: Safe, Smart and Responsible”

The presentation provides an overview of today’s media landscape, how it has changed over the past several decades, and how the Internet has changed—both positively and negatively—the way kids learn, make decisions, and socialize. The presenter will discuss 21st century skills, virtual worlds, social networking sites, commercialism, cyberbullying, sexual predators, and the ethical implications of kids’ digital media use. You’ll receive expert guidance on how to raise kids who are safe, smart, and responsible Internet users. Don’t miss it! This seminar is for parents only. No childcare is provided.
